A SHEPHERD DOG'S ENCOUNTER WITH A RATTLESNAKE.

"My name is Thomas Wilman, and I live in Philadelphia, where my son Harry is a prominent business man. Thirty-one years ago I married, in Great Barrington, Mass., as pretty a girl as that village (famous for its pretty girls) ever sheltered. She had been well brought up, but had no fortune. I had $1,500 which I had made by running a sawmill. We were young and had the world before us, and we concluded to go West. Going West in those days didn't mean, as it seems to now, going beyond the Mississippi. Going into 'York State' was going West then. I had a cousin in Cattaraugus, a little village on the Erie Railway, 30 miles east of Dunkirk, and we concluded to go there.

It was late in August when we reached Cattaraugus. My cousin gave us a hearty welcome, and I set about looking for a spot to build. Cattaraugus is a curious sort of a place. The village is surrounded by hills, and the wonder to me is that it doesn't slide down into the washbowl-like valley on the side of which it is built. A little creek runs through the village, and a mile to the west finds itself in a deep, narrow valley, with almost perpendicular sides, 100 feet high. This valley is called Skinney Hollow, and is one of the most picturesque spots on the Erie Road. I went down into the hollow prospecting. The sides, where they were not too steep, were covered with a heavy growth of first-class pine, and for miles around the hills were thick with the same timber. I saw there was money in a sawmill right down in that hollow, and I built one on the stream, which I could see was a good-sized creek most of the year. It is one of the branches of Cattaraugus Creek, which empties into Lake Erie 30 miles west of Buffalo.

"I built my mill there, and close to it a little house, so close in fact, that the two joined. I took Katie, that is my wife, down there, and we began housekeeping. That was well into the winter, and I began logging at once. I hired a gang of men to help me, raised money by contracting my lumber ahead and started in. We cut logs on the hills close to the mill, rigged up slides, and ran them down to the logway. I tell you it was music to me when the saw ripped into the first log and a clean-cut slab dropped away from the teeth. We had a little jollification. That was the first log ever cut in Skinner Hollow, and people drove miles to see it. Business was good. There was lots of snow, which made it easy work getting logs to the mill and drawing the lumber out to the village, besides giving me all the water I wanted. In fact water was running over the tail of my flume every hour from the time I turned it into the race till the middle of July. Then a dry spell came on, and I had to shut down for two or or three hours every day to let my race fill up.

"But I didn't mind that. I had a tip-top season and had made money. I had logs enough at my door to keep me busy for a year, and I knew where there were plenty more when those ran out. And, besides, I had two to look after instead of one. You wouldn't think if you'd see Harry, with all his refined ways and education, that the first music he ever heard was a saw tearing through a pine knot. But it's so. He was a pioneer's son and knocked around a sawmill till he was into his teens. Well, when business was slow I worked around the house, fixing up things here and there for Katie, so as to make her comfortable. She couldn't have been more contented. She used to think that sawmill was just about the pleasantest place in the country. Hour after hour she'd stay out there with me, and we'd keep up the conversation while the log was running back and stop when it went up to the saw. Dear me! Dear me! Why, I can see her as she used to look in those days in that little sawmill just as plainly as if I stood there with her to-day. She used to jump on the log and ride up pretty close to the saw and then, just as I would get scared and jump to drag her away, off she'd go. Nobody was ever happier than we were and we have never been as happy since, though we've been pretty happy and are yet."

The yellow sunlight flickered into the room where the two sat, and the wine looked like blood as the dancing rays shone through it. The old man was lost in happy reverie, and the young man ventured to remind him that there was a snake story promised.

"True," said the old man, starting, "I'm just coming to that. I lost myself thinking of those old days. There was snakes then, and we had killed them. Rattlers used to come out on the ledges of rocks and lay in the hot sun. One or two had come around the mill, and I had shot one in our door yard. But we thought nothing of that. People living in the woods or in wild places get used to things that would fill them with horror in a settled country. We expected to find snakes, and as long as they kept their distance or gave us a chance to shoot them when they got too near we didn't mind them.

"As I told you, I fixed up things around the house during slack time. One of the bits of furniture I knocked together was a bedstead. It was more like a broad lounge than a bedstead, for it had neither head nor footboard. One end was raised a little like a couch, and that was the head. We had some bearskins and blankets to cover us. It was a big improvement on the floor where we had been sleeping, and after a hard day's work handling logs I used think it about as comfortable a spot as I knew.

"Well, it got along into the fall and we began to have chilly nights. The equinoctial gave us a big rain, and for a fortnight I had all the water I could use. Then it got dry again. One afternoon, after several days of threatening weather, it began to rain. Hour after hour the rain came down till about 9 o'clock in the evening, when it suddenly cleared off and turned cold. It was late in October and we kept a fire burning on the hearth nights, more for the baby's sake than for our own. Our bed was parallel with the fireplace and stood out near the middle of the the room. We had an English shepherd dog named Loe, which we took with us from Massachussetts. He was a black and white beauty, and my wife, who had raised him, thought about as much of him as she did of the baby or me—at least I used to tell her so. The dog was fond of me and I made a great pet of him. He was a noble fellow, and all he wanted was for me to whistle just once and he'd come. We let him sleep in the room at the foot of the bed. Sometimes in the morning I'd wake up before my wife and I'd whistle just once to the dog. Up he'd come over the foot of the bed and wake Katie by licking her face.

"That night we were just going to bed when it turned cold. I threw an extra pine knot on the fire and went to the door and looked out. I shall never forget that look, for it was the last time I ever stood there and saw stars above Skinner Hollow. I closed the door and went to bed and soon fell asleep. I slept on the side of the bed nearest the hearth, my wife slept on the further side and the baby lay between us. For some reason I didn't sleep long, and when I waked up I couldn't get to sleep again. Finally I got out of bed and threw another knot on the fire. Leo was stretched out on the floor with his nose between his paws. He eyed me sleepily as I walked around the room and gave me a loving look as as I stooped down and patted his head. I went back to bed and fell into an uneasy sleep. All at once I wakened with a start. It must have been past midnight. I seemed to be fully awake the moment I opened my eyes, and such a sight as they rested on God grant they may never see again. I was lying on my left side facing my wife, who was lying on her right side. The baby lay on its back between us. As I opened my eyes a dark object glided down from off the baby, and just then the knot burst into flames and flooded the room with light. A rattlesnake, fully five feet long, had slipped down from between my wife and myself where it had streched out presumably to get warm, and, startled no doubt by some movement I had made in waking had thrown itself into a coil on the bed at the baby's feet and just opposite my knees.

"Somebody asks if life is worth living. I think it is as a general thing, but if life had many such moments as that I should say emphatically that death was preferable. For a moment I lost my head. I did not move, fortunately, but I seemed to drift entirely out of all consciousness. For a moment only this lasted. Then my senses came back to me, and I felt that from the reaction I would probably tremble from head to foot. How I ever managed to keep my body rigid I don't know, but by an awful effort I did. I knew that to stir was death, perhaps for my boy, perhaps—my God, the thought was agony—for my wife. Outside I could hear the rain dripping from the eaves, and I could detect the sound of water running to waste over the flume. To-morrow, I thought, I'll have plenty of water again. To-morrow! Would I ever see to-morrow again? And if I did would I not meet it alone? In spite of all I could do a shudder ran through my body.

"The snake felt it and raised its head. I could see its eyes glisten and dance in the firelight, and the bright rays glanced over the undulating coils. I could see that the snake was irritated, and I knew that it was liable to spring at any moment. Who would it strike? Either of us was within easy distance. It seemed to me that I could see the beginning of the muscular contraction which would precede the spring.

"All this, of course, passed in a fraction of the time I have occupied in telling it. My wife and boy slept on. I prayed that they might not move, for if they did I felt the snake would throw itself forward. I moved my head slightly. The snake's head again arose, and for the first time it sounded its rattle. Instantly my wife opened her eyes, and some way they rested on the snake. I sould see that every vestige of color had left her face, but she did not move a muscle. Then her eyes slowly left the snake and came up to mine.

"Looking back of the nearly thirty years which have elapsed since then I can see the look in her eyes yet. We had sometimes talked about meeting death together. Now it lay between us and in more horrible form than we had ever dreamed of. Yet the look of perfect confidence in me which my wife's eyes almost spoke was something a man does not see more than once in a lifetime. That look seemed to say, for baby's sake, and like a flash I became as cool as I am at this moment. I could not speak but my wife understood that she must keep perfectly quiet and jump. When the time came, slowly and with infinite care I raised my head till I could look down the bed to the floor beyond. My wife's eyes followed mine and we both saw the dog. The hideous eyes of the snake swayed to and fro, and I knew that what was done must be done quickly. I looked at my wife and she realized my plan. Her eyes filled with tears but gave consent. With a prayer for help I moistened my lips an gave one short, sharp whistle. The snake, I think didn't know what to make of it, but the dog, Leo, did. As quick almost as thought he sprang to his feet and bounded on the bed. To this day I've never been able to understand why the snake did not strike when the dog moved, but it did not. As the dog's body rose in the air my wife caught hold of the baby's garments and rolled out of bed. I rolled out on my side, grasped my rifle, which stood at the head of the bed, and turned. The dog and the snake were rolling together on the bed. I caught sight of the snake's head and fired, and the reptile was past doing any harm. The dog staggered off the bed to the floor, shivered, moaned once or twice, looked from my wife to myself with more love than I ever saw before or since in any animal's eyes and died.

"At daybreak the next morning we buried the dog and started for the village. I sold my mill and house to a man who was visiting my cousin, and before sunset we were on our way to Massachusetts. I built another mill in the East, and we prospered and grew rich. Other children came to make our home happy, and there are grandchildren now. We have enjoyed life, and enjoy it now. But I tell you, young man, that if poverty stood on one hand and even a glimpse of Skinner Hollow on the other, we would take poverty cheerfully and think we had made a good bargain."

Cleveland and Hendricks,

Democratic Candidates

FOR

AND

VICE PRESIDENT.

A REPUBLICAN WELCOME.

Address of Welcome of the Buffalo Cleveland Republicans to Cleveland at the Great Reception given the Governor at his Home.

The committee of Cleveland Republicans, consisting of thirty of the leading Republican business men of that city, have issued the following address of welcome to Governor Cleveland:

GOVERNOR CLEVELAND: You are among us for the first time since your nomination for the high office of President of the United States. The Cleveland Republicans of the city of your home desire to extend to you a formal and hearty welcome. Buffalo has many times shown its confidence in and esteem for you Twice when Republicans have desired to rebuke dishonesty in their own party they have found in you the efficient instrument. You have been our Mayor and are now our Governor. In every position in which you have been placed you have shown yourself worthy of the trust reposed in you.

No honest man of any party ever had reason to regret giving you his support.

Causes similar to those which forced you into the Mayor's chair against your will and made you Governor of the Empire State without your having sought the office now call for your election to the highest office in the nation. The issues of this campaign, which overchadow all other interests, is integrity.

"Without honesty wisdom is mere craft and cozenage."

We want more than anything else in the chair of Washington and Lincoln a fearless, independent, honest man. As Republicans we say with regret that we believe your chief competitor for the Presidential office is not such a man. The record of his official life has caused many even of those who now support him to condemn him as unclean and dangerous. His tell-tale letters, showing how he used his official position to make money for himself, have received many friendly explanations. But none of them has succeeded in explaining away his dishonor. The taint of corruption clings to them and should—and we believe must—prove an effectual bar to his election to the office he has so long and presistently sought. We deem it especially fortunate that in turning from a candidate whom we cannot trust we find an imposing candidate in every way worthy of confidence.

We prefer an honest Democrat to a dishonest Republican. We cannot understand that sentiment or that superstition which puts party before honor and before country. We cannot comprehend that logic which says that one man may be corrupt a Congressman and yet be trusted to be a model President, and in the same breath tells us that another man though he may be a model Governor cannot be trusted in the Presidency. In the face of such false and contemptable doctrine we say: You have been faithful over the interests placed in your charge. We will strive to enlarge the field of your responsibilities and usefulness. We have watched your official career and have studied your life. We feel that we know you well. We believe that integrity is the basis of your character, that faithfulness to trust is your first rule of life.

We believe that, like Clay, you had rather be right than be President if choice must be made, and that, like Lincoln, you will be firm in the right as God gives you to see the right. We therefore tender you our indorsement and support, and bid you welcome as an honored guest, a Presidential candidate, a model Governor, but greater than all, an honest man.

The executive committee of Cleveland Republicans of Erie county.

General McClellan's Views.

General George B. McClellan has sounded the key-note of the political situation in the following words:

"This contest now is the mighty and, I firmly believe, the crucial effort of the honest, self-respecting, the patriotic classes of this people to overthrow an oligarchy of office-holders which, in all its tendencies and manifestations, is unrepublican—is fatal to the permanence of Republican institutions. I believe in the integrity of this people. I believe that, awakened to a realizing sense of the danger that threatens them, they will sweep away as chaff this class that threatens their liberties and is disgracing them at home and abroad. I believe they are awake to the danger. They proved it ten years ago by the indignant uprising against the infamies at Washington. They proved it two years later by electing the candidate whose promise was 'reform.' They proved it in 1878. In 1880 the vote for the President elected was a minority by over half a million of the total vote cast. In 1882 they proved it by the election of Cleveland in New York, of Pattison in Pennsylvania—two men known only by the reforms which simple honesty and a high sense of official duty and responsibility had enabled them to work in corrupt municipal governments. Both were elected by an internecine revolt against corruption in the party opposed to them. As I have said, this tendency has been uniform, and, though not given to exploit itself except in acts, all powerful. It is the patriotism of the American people asserting itself. It now supports the man who most admirably represents it and is fighting for the principles, clear cut and defined, which account for its existence and its strength."

The Real Business Men.

The New York Merchants Issue an Address to the Country.

NEW YORK, Oct. 9.—The New York Produce and Maritime Independent Merchants' Cleveland and Hendricks Club yesterday issued the following address adopted by the executive committee:

To Our Fellow Merchants of the United States:—The objects for which the republican party was formed have been accomplished, the men who were the people's trusted leaders in the times of trial are either dead or the counsels of the living are no longer heeded.

The bad element has control, and, contrary to the advice of wise and good men, a candidate has been nominated for the presidency whom reputable business men would hesitate to trust. He has been convicted by public opinion of using his official position to influence legislation by which his own private fortunes have been advanced; he has been the agent of lobbyists to secure improper legislation while occupying a seat in the congress of the United States, and when accused of the dishonorable practises has denied facts proved by his own correspondence over his own signature.

We submit that a man thus convicted is unfit to be elected to the chief executive office in a nation of 55,000,000 of people to be their chosen representative before the world,

This state of facts existing in one party and with its candidate, we turn elsewhere and find that after this nomination was made, against the protest of a large minority of representative republicans, the democratic party nominated for president Grover Cleveland, governor of the state of New York. As governor his action has the people's hearty approval; he has signed or vetoed bills in their interest rather than in that of party; his ability and integrity eminently fit him to fill the higher office of president. He considers a public offie a sacred trust, and says for his party, which unanimously accepted the results of the war with all its consequences, so that there is no essential difference between it and the republicans: "We go forth, not merely to gain partisan advantage, but pledged to give to those who trust us the utmost benefits of a pure and honest administration of national affairs." The New York Produce and Maritime Independent Merchants' Cleveland and Hendricks club will trust him, and cast their votes for Cleveland and Hendricks for president and vice president and urge all associations of business men to organize, work and vote for their election.

Close Financiering.

'What is the wooden box for sir?' asked the new stockholder of the president of the just organized bank.

'That? Oh, that's for the securities and money, you know. We must have some place to keep them,' replied the practical president.

'Why certainly; I know that,' replied the astonished stockholder, 'but ain't you going to have a safe?'

'No, there is no use going into fool ish expenses,' placidly replied the president.

'What, no safe?'

'Why, no. When the cashiers go to Canada they always take the combination with them and you cannot realize anything on a second hand safe with a busted lock.'

They Drove Him In.

The owner of a place on Sibley street appeared in front of the house the other morning with a step-ladder and a saw and began the work of trimming up his shade trees. When he was at the first limb a pedestrian halted and queried:

'Going to trim your trees, eh?'

'Yes.'

'Um. I see. First-rate time to trim trees. Um. Exactly.'

He hadn't got two blocks away before number two came along and called out:

'Going to trim your trees, eh?'

'Yes.'

'Ah! I see. Ought to have waited a month later.'

The limb was off when No. 3 halted, stood for a minute with his hands in his pockets and then asked:

'Going to trim your trees, eh?'

'Yes.'

'Ought to have done that last month.'

No. 4 said that April was the proper month. No. 5 wouldn't trim a tree except in May. No. 6 thought November the best time of the year, and so it went until every month in the year had been named and there were five or six individuals to spare. Before the first tree was finished the seventeenth pedestrian halted, threw away the stub of his cigar and loudly demanded:

'Going to trim your trees, eh?'

The man hung his saw to a limb, got down off the ladder, and spitting on his hands he walked close up to the inquirer and said:

'Supposing I am! What are you going to do about it?'

'Oh, nothing,' answered the other as he dodged around a pile of brick; 'I was simply going to ask you if you used tar or porous plasters to cover the scars?'

The citizen got his saw and ladder and disappeared in the house, and the remainder of the work will be done at night.—Detroit Free Press.

The Farmer got a Seat.

An old farmer entered a Chicago, Burlington and Quincy train at Monmouth. Every seat in the car was occupied. The old man walked up and down the aisle two or three times, expecting to see somebody offer him a seat. But nobody stirred. Finally he stopped beside two seats, in one of which a St. Louis drummer had deposited his grips and in the other himself. His feet, encased in cardinal hose and imitation patent slippers, adorned the top of his luggage.

'Is this seat engaged?' inquired the farmer, pointing to the gripsacks.

'Don't you see that it is?'

The old man took another turn down the aisle. He was evidently loosing patience. As he returned the train was pulling out. On the side track was a stock train, loaded with squealing porkers.

'Say, Mister,' shouted the farmer, unable longer to restrain himself, 'be you goin' up to Chicago?'

'I am so,' replied the St. Louis man.

'Wall, all I've got to say is, you're on the wrong train. You ought to be over there on the next track.'

The drummer got off at the next stopping place and the old man settled into his seat with a smile as broad as his acres in Knox county.

Perfectly safe.

Jones—'See here, Smith I don't like to hurry you away from the boys, but you are a married man and I am afraid you will have trouble if you stay with us any later. It is nearly midnight.'

Smith—'Oh, don't worry about me; I'm all right.'

'But you said Mrs. S nearly took the roof off when you got home after midnight.'

'Yes, but there is no danger this evening.'

'Won't she be awake?'

'Oh, she will be wide awake enough, but my eldest daughter had her beau with her this evening.'

'What difference can that make?'

'A very big difference. She will have all the clocks two hours slow.'

AN alphabetical list of the personages in Sir Walter Scott's novels has just been compiled, from which it appears that they comprise 622 distinct characters.

Democratic Majority in WEST VIRGINIA!

Tuesday's contest in West Virginia resulted in the election of the democratic state ticket by a majority of at least 7500, a gain of 5000 over the majority in 1800. The democrats in 1880 had a majority of 3100 and in 1882—3200. This is one of the states that the Blaine managers had claimed in the early part of the canvass, but they failed to get it.

Result in Ohio.

The Republicans, after Blaines' stump tour through the state and an immense amount of hard work and worry succeeded in purchasing a plurality of about 12,000. This does not come up to republican expectations and is about 10,000 less than Blaine hoped for. The result of the October elections leaves the democratic sky brighter than ever and Blaine will have to do more stumping than he did in Ohio it he would beat Cleveland in November.

Curtin to Run as an Independent.

Special Dispatch to the PATRIOT.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Oct. 14.—The conference of the Twentieth congressional district is now in session here. At the convening of the evening session the conferees of Centre and Clearfield counties, representing Governor Curtin, without provocation or warning withdrew from the conference. This was in pursuance of an agreement with the republican conference also in session here to-day, that no republican would be placed in nomination and Curtin's name would be placed on the republican tickets. The republican conference has adjourned. The democratic conference is still in session.

A MAN without honor or shame, a rascal and instigator of rascalities, are some of the scathing terms used by the New York Times, one of the most influential republican papers in the country, in speaking of Blaine.

NEW ENGLAND Republicans are bolting Blaine by droves. Alas for the letters. "Burn them."

THE Brooklin, N. Y. Eagle, estimates the vote of the "independent republicans" in that state at 45,000. The New York Herald thinks this estimation much too low.

MANY of the Hocking Valley, (Ohio) mines are on fire. The striking miners blame the operators, and they in return blame the miners for setting fire to the mines. The campaign was hot enough to fire them.

AMONG the latest bolters from Blaine are Daniel C. Eaton, Professor of Botany in Yale College, and Hon. E. M. Chapin, of Connecticut. And still they come.

Cannot Support Blaine.

Resignation of a New York Republican Elector.

Dr. W. E. Forrest, one of the Electors on the Republican ticket for New York, has resigned from his position because he cannot conscientiously support Mr Blaine. He has addressed the following letter to Mr. J. D. Warren, the Chairman of the Republican State Committee:

"Sir:—I wish to tender my resignation as Republican Elector for this State. I am sorry to say that I cannot conscientiously support the present nominee for President, James G. Blaine.

I remain, yours respectfully,
W. E. FORREST."

Since the receipt of this letter a few days ago the members of the State and National Republican Committees have been at their wits' ends what to do about it. They have brought every influence to bear on Dr. Forrest to induce him to withdraw his resignation. But the Doctor has stood firm to his convictions.

A reporter of the World called on Dr. Forrest. Though always active in the councils of his party, Dr. Forrest was never particularly indentified with ward politics, but his name was put on the Republican Electoral ticket. In answer to the reporter's inquiry, the Doctor freely admitted that he had sent his letter of resignation to the Chairman of the Republican State Committee.

'What were your reasons, Doctor,' asked the reporter, 'for declining to serve as an elector?'

'There is only one reason, and I have so stated it in my letter. It is because I cannot conscientiously support Mr. Blaine.'

'Will you state why you cannot support him?'

'I would prefer not to mention my reasons. They must be patent to everybody.'

'Were you not aware when you were chosen an elector that Mr. Blaine would be likely to receive the nomination?'

'It was some time before the Convention when I was chosen—early in June, I believe. At that time I had given the subject very little consideration.

Since Mr. Blaine was nominated I have regarded his choice by the Convention in every light, and after a long and careful consideration, I could not help coming to the conclusion that I could not conscientiously remain on the electoral ticket. I was in honor bound to so inform the Committee, which I did. I do not know that I can say anything further on the subject.'

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 13 1884.

There is Joe Medill with his Chicago Tribune, there is Horace White, and there is Bill Grosvenor, all three of them slashing away like all possessed in favor of Blaine and free trade, while Blaine himself is tramping with his hippodrome all through Ohio, denouncing free trade and splitting the ears of the groundlings with his howls for protection! It is no wonder that such a bevy of incongruities should scatter themselves and keep as far aloof as possible from each other. How politics and politicians can be utilized so as to suit localities and adapt themselves to circumstances, has never been so fully exemplified as in the present campaign. In the wool districts of Ohio, and the iron districts of Pennsylvania, the Republican orators whoop it up for protection, while the same fellows go into free trade, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas and Illinoise and scream the other way. However, Blaine's career as a politician and financier makes the tariff question of minor importance with the people, who are sending up a most earnest cry against the elevation of such a man to the most exalted position on earth.

A prominent Republican lawyer in Indiana writes relative to the Democratic prospect in that State, that Commissioner Dudley's resigning of his position as Commissioner of Pensions, to take effect after election, is one of the most barefaced and atrocious cases of malversation in office that has ever occurred in our political history. This very act of Dudley's is going to cost his party in Indiana twenty thousand votes, and it ought to. Dudley was a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor of Indiana, and having been worsted in that, has of course received a promise of something fat from a Republican administration in case there should be one next year. The attention of President Arthur has been frequently called to Dudley's transgression of the Civil Service law, but Mr. Arthur's junketing propensity must first be gratified, and then—he will let Dudley do as he pleases.

It is perhaps entirely appropriate that Mr. ex-Senator Windom should take the stump in Ohio to help out his friend Mr. Mulligan Blaine, inasmuch as they both belong to that class of Republican office holders who have been able to rear magnificant palaces at the capital on insignificant salaries. When Mr. Windom was a candidate before the Minnesota Legislature, two or three years ago, for reelection to the Senate, some meddle some fellow sent on to St. Paul and had distributed among the members of the Legislature a photograph of Windom's palatial residence accompanied by a vivid description of the inlaid panel work, the tiled floors, the costly staircases, the elegant bric-a-bric, and all that sort of thing. The photograph did its work, and did it so effectually that Mr. Windom has not been accounted a factor in Minnesota or any other politics since. The plain farmers of Minnesota could not comprehend the arthmetical progression that enabled Mr. Windom to put $150,000 in a residence, on a salary of $5,000 a year, unless there was some kind of extraneous jobbery which the people of Minnesota had not chosen him to indulge in. Mr. Blaine's mansion is still costlier and more elegant in all its appointments, as you may judge when I tell you that Mr. Leiter, the recent dry goods prince of Chicago, pays $13,000 per annum for its rental! PHONO.

Neuralgia of the Face.

Capt. John Orr, Pearlington, Miss., has been a most intense sufferer from facial neuralgia for over twenty years. He has had seventeen operations performed on the nerves—that is, had them divided, cut off close to the bone from which they emerge. But this never did him any good; the most excruciating pain continued without the least interruption. He often wished for death to relieve him of the intolerable pain. The best physicians failed to relieve him. They finally advised him to consult Drs. Hartman & Miller, at the St. Charles Hotel, New Orleans, which he did. They prescribed PERUNA, and in less than a month was entirely relieved of the pain. Before consulting these doctors the least touch to any part of his face or nose would cause the most fearful pain, while now he can blow his nose and wipe his face without the least fear of pain. The captain is grateful beyond measure for this unexpected and unhoped for result.

Mrs. Elizabeth Kenner, 98 Laurel street, New Orleans, has been one of the greatest sufferers from Neuralgia of the face during the past year that we have ever heard of. From morning to night, and from night to morning, there was one constant, racking, tearing, burning pain, extending clear around her head and deep down through every muscle, tooth and bone in her face. No rest and no sleep. All physicians failed to relieve her, as well as all remedies. She was constantly in the most agonizing despair. She called on Dr. Hartman, who said the cause was chronic catarrh. He prescribed PERUNA for her and now every pain has left her. She feels like another person and can eat heartily and sleep soundly.

Mrs. C. J. Miles, Gallipolis, O, writes: "DR. S. B. HARTMAN & Co., Columbus, O. My affliction has been rheumatism, located in the right arm and shoulder, of more than two years' standing, and after trying a great many remedies without any relief, I commenced the use of PERUNA, which, after using three bottles, found a decided change for the better. I continued to use it and now feel entirely well."

Huldah Ward, Wellston, O., writes: "I have been afflicted for years with that dreaded disease, catarrh. I tried a great many different kinds of medicine, but to no effect. I commenced taking your PERUNA about nine months ago; have taken about ten bottles. It is doing me much good. By its continued use I hope to be entirely cured."

Dr. A. B. Lovejoy, Dadeville, Ala., writes: "I have a fine run on your PERUNA and MANALIN. Please send me a lot of books, "The Ills of Life."

—Mr. C. A. Sturgis, of Lewisburg, was up last week on a short visit. His mother, Mrs. Sturgis, from Lancaster, also arrived last week, and is at present the guest of Mrs. A. Walter.

—The Hartleton Luth. charge has elected Rev. Sam. G. Finkle, of Rhinebech, N. J. as their pastor. He will preach his introductory sermon at Hartleton and Laurelton next Sunday.

FOR SALE.—The undersigned has for sale a good stock of full-bred Chester White pigs, various sizes, at his premises at Aaronsburg, Pa.

J. H. MUSSER.

—The two inside pages of the Centre Democrat are filled with plate matter, cast in the city and sent to that office every week. Only the two outside pages of that paper are put up at home.

—Solomon Kleckner's farm of forty-three acres of land in Miles township, was sold at administrator's sale last Saturday, to Oscar Gramley, of Brushvalley, for $2005.

ACCIDENT.—A man by the name of Charles Straub had the misfortune to get three of his fingers sawed off at Luther Guisewite's saw mill, near Fowler's, last Tuesday forenoon.

—The family of Mr. A. O. Deininger intend moving to Clarkstown, Lycoming Co., next week, where Mr. D. fills a government office in the distillery. Our best wishes go with them.

—Musser & Smith, the hardware men, have put up a huge double-heater in their store on Main street, which heats the up and down-stairs of the building. They are bound to keep warm this winter.

—If any of our subscribers have any apples to spare let them bring several bushels to this office on account. From fifteen to twenty bushels of potatoes are wanted on subscription. Please bring them in.

—Rev. Sarvis' revival in the M. E. church of this place is at this writing (Tuesday evening) still in progress and seems to meet with good success, 9 mourners being at the bench converting themselves.

—Mr. Lewis Rarich and wife, of Zion, and the Misses Tillie and Margery Thompson, of Brookville, Pa., former residents of this place, were in town several days visiting Mr. Peter Rarich's on Main street.

—J. W. Lose wears quite a fatherly look. It's a bouncing boy and John says he will make a staunch democrat out of him and that is more than he could do with a girl. Consequently there is joy around his premises.

—Adam Weaver, executor of the estate of Adam Weaver, late of Haines township, deceased, will make sale of the real estate and personal property of decedent, on Saturday, Nov. 1st, 1884. See notice on second page.

—Millard Mechtly, the master bricklayer, has finished the work at the new Reformed church at Aaronsburg and is working on the Reformed church at Troxelville, Snyder Co., now. This is the third church he puts up since Aug. 8th.

—Mr. Christian Houts, of Madisonburg, aged seventy six years, at a threshing at Michael Miller's recently where Mr. Krumrine's engine was used, handled all the sheaves of grain for a full half a day. A healthy old gentleman.

—The entertainment of the Ladies Mite Society in the Reformed church at Aaronsburg last Thursday evening proved a success. The exercises were very interesting and well rendered, the attendance good, and the collection liberal.

—The nicest stock of horses ever brought to this town were offered for sale by Messrs. D. N. & H. J. App on Tuesday last. The attendance of the sale was very good and 16 of the horses were sold at prices ranging from $80 to $205.

—T. D. Stover, Haines township, gives notice in another column that he has taken out letters of administration for the estate or Jacob W. Stover, dec'd. He will make sale of the personal property of decedent on Saturday Oct. 25th. See bills.

—S. K. Faust is already preparing for the winter season. He hauled a large lot of sleighs "in the rough" from the station on Monday, which he expects to finish in first-class style. Sam is a lively and energetic business man and bound to be ahead.

—If a man is getting shaved in a barber shop, and a fly alights on his nose, and he gives his head a twitch to jerk off the fly, during which the barber removes a slice of the man's ear, who is to blame—the man or the barber, or the fly, or the ear, or the razor.

—Mr. John Kerstetter, Jr., still makes a business of doing special jobs at carpentry. John is really an expert at the business and has large experince, both in making out plans, specifications and drawings, as well as a practical workman. People who entrust their work into his hands can safely rely on having it done in best style at the lowest prices. tf

—The valuable farm and timberland in Penn township, and hotel property in Millheim, of Jonathan Kreamer, deceased, will be offered at public sale on Saturday, Oct. 18th next by the executors of the estate, A. F. and J. H. Kreamer. See bills and advertisement in another column.

—Whitmer & Lincoln, the popular coal dealers, whose advertisement can be feund on our outside, are busy filling orders for coal at their sheds at Coburn. They certainly keep a very clean and good stock on hand and parties procuring coal from them are sure to get the worth of their money.

—Mrs. E. Brumgart just returned from New York City, where she had been for the past week purchasing a complete and fine stock of Millinery Goods, and our lady readers can look out for something new and cheap in that line. Mrs. B. is an experienced and tasty milliner and always succeeds in suiting the wants of her customers.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

—NEW ENTERPRISE AT MILLHEIM.—Mr. J. E. Fetterolf, of Snyder county, will make his home in this town by the sixth of next month, when he will start a furniture manufactory in Foote's former cultivator shops on Main street. He expects to run the works by steam, his engine having been placed in the shops last Monday. We earnestly wish the gentleman abundant success in his enterprises.

—Who has not heard or been the recipient of benefits derived from using N. H. Downs' Elixir, a never failing remedy for all diseases of Throat, Chest and Lungs. None are too poor to get cured of bilious diseases by the use of Dr. Baxter's Mandrake Bitters, as they only cost 25 cents per bottle. As a liniment for horses, Henry & Johnson's Arnica and Oil Liniment, cures Sprains, Bruises and Lameness at once.

SAD DEATH.—Miss Heckman, a daughter of Mr. J. F. Heckman residing about a mile east of Penn Hall, died last Thursday forenoon after a short and apparently slight sickness, of neuralgia of the heart. The lady was only sixteen years of age, accomplished and amiable, beloved by her mourning parents and highly esteemed by the community, who sincerely sympathize with the parents in their affliction. The funeral took place on Saturday forenoon, when a large concourse of relatives and friends followed her earthly remains to the grave. Rev. Z. A. Yearick officiated.

MINISTERIAL CHANGES.—Rev. Herald, of the U. B. church of this place will vacate this charge and will go to Cattawissa, Columbia Co. He will be succeeded by Rev. Wm. Lamey, of Lykens, Cumberland Co., who has been appointed for this congregation. Mr. N. Shannon has also re-entered the clerical field and has accepted a charge at Tremont, Schuykill Co.

—The following item from the Bellefonte Watchman speaks well for our home mechanics :

Mr. Thomas Zeigler, of Rebersburg, and Mr. Lewis Tobias, of Millheim, were in town on Monday last. They had been at the State College, making and burning brick for the new Reformed church there. The bricks manufactured by Messrs. Zeigler & Tobias, have attained a wide celebrity, and are in great demand. The operations of this firm extend throughout Centre, Clinton, Clearfield and Mifflin counties, and away out into the State of Ohio, into Stark county, Steubenville and other points. Centre county has reason to be proud of this ; it is another instance of the perfection to which her industries have arrived, and shows the energy, skill and prosperity of her citizens. Messrs. Zeigler & Tobias' brick are hand made, and they don't get out of anybody's way in their line of business.

FIRE AT CENTRE HALL.—On Monday forenoon the news were brought to this office of a large fire which occurred at Centre Hall at about one o'clock Sunday night. When the town was awakened from its slumbers the inhabitants found the two stables, of Mrs. Neff and Wm. Wolf, in the rear of the Lutheran church on Church street in a fierce blaze. By a back cornice which projected over one of the burning stables, the church also soon became a victim of the fire, which it was impossible to control and which destroyed the entire structure. Nothing could be saved except the organ and a few pieces of loose furniture. In one of the stables Mr. Sando had two cows, a calf and eleven hogs, all of which perished in the flames. Also several buggies and spring wagons were burned. The entire loss occastoned by thd fire is estimated at $8000. The church carries an insurance of $3300 in the Centre Hall company Mr. Wolf's stable, $2000. The supposition is that the fire was the work of incendiarism. The only thing that saved the town from a large conflagration was the still and foggy night.

—On Saturday, Oct, 25th, 1884, at two o'clock, p. m., the valuable farm in Penn township, of Daniel Kreamer, deceased, will be offered at public sale by the executor of the estate, Jas. P. Coburn. The farm contains about Two hundred and thirty acres, with two dwelling houses, large bank barn, small tenant house, wagon shed carriage house, corn cribs and other outbuildings thereon erected. This is one of the best and most desirable farms in the valley and purchasers will secure a very pleasant home.

—OCTOBER is a good month for merchants to examine their stock of Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine and include a winter's supply in their next order. The people have found out by experience that it can be relied on in all cases of croup, whooping cough, colds, and lung troubles of any nature, and will have it. A good article draws trade while worthless articles drive it away. It should be a source of satisfaction to a dealer as well, to know he is giving good honest value for money received. Letter from Ellsworth, Kansas.

EDITOR JOURNAL :

Since I am in Kansas, which is now about two months I have been a constant reader of your most welcome paper. It arrives her regularly every Sunday evening with the 6 o'clock Express. I write more particularly to comment on a local which appeared in a recent issue of the JOURNAL. It seems a certain young man from Centre Co. who is at present staying in Ellsworth has written to some one living in your town that I did not like Kansas, could not get anything to do and would start for the east in a few weeks. Now Mr Editor that same young man made a great mistake in using my name in connection with his case. I am positive at this writing that he was describing his case exactly and in a mistake got my name mixed with it. I will just say this in connection with what I have written to relatives and friends in the east, that I think a great deal of Kansas (generally speaking) and every day adds to my desire for staying. I will acknowledge that I have a longing some times to be with those who are near and dear to me, and who would not rather be with his family than among strangers. If I had my family with me, I think I would be perfectly happy and contented, in my new quarters for several years at least. As to getting a job (using the correspondents own language) I could have had a job immediately upon my arrival in Ellsworth but I did not ask for a job at once and would not have accepted any. Going to work so soon would have deprived me of many enjoyments which I have had. I spent part of one month in riding over some of the finest country I ever saw and driving one of the finest span of ponies (acknowledged to be such by competent judges) in Ellsworth or Lincoln counties. My brother was always very anxious to have me accompany him, to do the driving when he went to fill his different appointments. These sacred drives of course came every Sunday and always not less than twenty five miles from home. On several occasions we had hardly made the round trip, when a message was brought to the parsonage to return at once to the place we just left and attend a funeral or solemnize a marriage. I was generaly invited to go along but did not always accept. I got tired riding over the country and especially the same road so often. I can tell you Mr. Editor, I would not be a preacher here in this western country. While I am here I find my brother works harder in the ministry than he ever did in the east. Although the work is hard nevertheless it is encouraging to see how anxious the people are to have the Gospel preached to them. Imagine for one moment a school house 16 feet wide by 24 feet long standing out on the open prairie, a bright moonlight Summer night, corn, wheat and other grain standing in shock and stalk close around the building. See, there comes a two horse wagon laden with people! They stop right here at this little school house, they get off, yes, there comes another, and another and so they continto come until I counted 21 two horse wagons tied up around this little school house. How do you suppose Mr. Editor, we got all these people with many others who came there on foot, into this little school house? Well they did not all get in, but we filled her chuck full; they crowded right around the little preacher, the balance hung around the windows, and took every possible way to get an ear in hearing distance. I can tell you it was a curiosity for me, I enjoyed it all the same. You will probably ask was this the first meeting with these people. No sir, about the 51st and the audience grows larger every meeting. This is one part of church service on the western frontier, and I must say I like it about as well as any. Three sermons every Sunday, hard work, but the people are kind and never let the preacher go home empty. I declare I lost my subject. Well I got a job. Started in on the first of last month. Have a nice, clean and pleasant position and am receiving good wages. I am running a confectionery, oyster and Ice cream parlor for Mr. B. A. Foster whose advertisement no doubt you have seen in the Ellsworth papers that have been sent to you in the past. He has given me entire control of the business, while he gives his attention to his grocery (The Bee Hive) located in another part of the city. I merely mention these facts to show you and your readers, that your youthful correspondent made a mistake when he said I could not get a job. Well as to my starting for the "east in a few weeks" from the time he wrote, I think will hardly take place. I have set no time for returning home but will stay a few months longer at least.

Will weary you no longer, this is my first attempt in writing for the press, if you think it worthy publish it, you may hear from me again in the future.

Respectfully Yours
C. G. BRIGHT.

—The B. & O. Red Book for Pennsylvania is ready for distribution, and in more than one respect, is the most valuable of any of the editions hitherto based upon this State. As has always been the rule, the forwarding of a stamp to C. K. Lord, Baltimore, is all that is necessary to secure a copy, and in fact the only way, as the Red Book issues are all for mail circulation. The present volume is replete with political statistics and condensed data, not only as the latest Presidential, State and Congressional elections in this State, but relating as well to elections since admission into the Union. It would be difficult to imagine a more complete showing of past results in the State, or a more neatly put together and printed little book.

Madisonburg Scraps.

Mrs. Emma Lose, of Lock Haven, spent a few days in town last week, visiting friends.

T. F. Moyer, proprietor of the Madisonburg hotel made a flying trip to Philadelphia last week, to attend court.

Dr. Geo. L. Lee intends to move into his new house opposite the school house on Tuesday.

The plasterers are making good headway on the Luth. church.

Jared Hazel sold his property to Mr. Jackson Ocker for the sum of eight hundred dollars.

There will be a democratic meeting in the town hall of this place, this evening, Oct. 16th. Democrats, turn out and Fortney and Rhone will teach you how to "turn the rascals out."

Miss. Annie Ocker came home on Saturday to stay all winter. She had been working during the summer for H. R. Fiedler.

Miss Katie Hazel scalded her hand very badly last Sunday morning by accidentally spilling hot water on the stove.

Miss Ida Shafer started for Lock Haven on Tuesday to learn dressmaking. Madisonburg takes the lead for seamstresses. We lost a very fine lady by Miss Shafer's departure.

Geo. Grenoble lost a very fine young heifer last Tuesday morning. Cause of its death not known.

The servant girl has returnd from her visit down the country.

Fred. Shlegle intends residing with Jacob Royer and will move some time in November.

Remember the democratic meeting to-night in the town hall. Come one, come all!

PICKINGS.

The display of machinery and models at the New Orleans exposition, which opens in December, cannot fail to command widespread interest and attention and that, too, in a part of the country where these branches of industry need most to be cultivated. The patent office at Washington will add much to the attractiveness of this display. Since the patent office was established in 1836, nearly three hundred thousand patents have been issued. Many ingenious and instructive models will be sent to New Orleans. These will serve to illustrate all the industrial and scientific pursuits of the American people. Beside the patent models most of the machines of full size may be seen in operation in the main building. One shoe factory in Massachusetts turns out by patent machinary, in twelve months, as many pairs of boots and shoes as thirty thousand shoemakers in Paris make by hand in a year.

"The other day, says the Journal of Education, on the steps of our office we came upon a bright young Chinaman, whom we remembered as one of the wonderful boys selected by competitive examination, and sent to America, where he graduated among the foremost in the high school of one of our large New England cities. Taken aback to see him completely transformed in dress, with cropped hair, we ventured the question, "How is this?" "Oh," said he, with a spurt of high spirit, "Ch ina was too slow after the Springfield high school. I went back, and I found I was an American boy, and have come back here to live as an American citizen." A system of education that changes a young Chinaman, certain of official promotion, to a bookseller's clerk in Boston, in four years, may be defective in various ways, but it certainly does the business for which it was made by the people—training boys and girls for active citizenship in the new republic."

Some figures made recently here regarding the debt of the United States as compared with that of other nations, has the tendency to make one quite content with the billion and three-quarters of debt that the country is carrying, writes a correspondent of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. For instance, the debt of Spain, with her 17,000,000 of people, is just about the same as that of the United States. Italy, with her population of 28,000,000, has a debt of $2,000,000. Great Britain, with a population of 35,000,000 of people has a debt of over $4,000,000,000. Unofficial estimates of the population of the United States, obtained fron census reports, gives the population of this country now about 56,000,000. The debt is about one and three-quarters billions. Dividing the population into this debt it gives an average debt per head among the entire population of $30. Comparing this with the debt per capita of other countries the result is quite gratifying. The debt of Belgium, for instance, is more than double per capita than that of the United States, being $64 per head. That of Italy averages over $70 per head. That of the Netherlands is over $90 per head. That of France over $100 per head. That of Great Britain $109 to each citizen, that of Spain more than $150 per head. Indeed, the debts of all countries with organized governments whose debt statements are attainable average per head $4 or thirty-three per cent. more than that of the United States. In the countries which have large debts, like Great Britain, Russia, Spain and Italy, the revenue is barely sufficient to comfortably meet the current expenses, leaving little if anything, with which to pay the debt, while we are paying ours at the rate of over $100,000,000 a year. The annual interest charged in this country is but about eighty cents per head, while in England and France it is over $4 per head.

Domestic Receipts.

Baked cucumbers are a novelty on most tables. Take large ones, pare them, and with a pointed spoon scoop out the seeds. Mix the seeds with a little cold ham, either boiled or fried, and a few bread crumbs; season with salt, pepper, and a little bit of onion, and moisten with Worcestershire sauce. Fill the cucumbers with this, put them into an earthen pudding dish, and bake them, basting them with gravy, or with butter and water.

This receipt for ginger-cake comes from an English cook noted for the excellence of her work: Put one pound of butter into one pound of flour; add half a pound of finely-powdered sugar, the rind of a lemon grated, two tablespoonsful of ground ginger, and one grated nutmeg. Mix them together; then heat one gill of sweet milk, or warm it, rather, stir into it half a teaspoonful of bi-carbonite of soda. Roll out, cut in square cakes, and bake in a moderate oven.

"Stamford" wishes to know how to utilize the remains of cold broiled fish. Fish patties are much liked by some people. Line some small tins with pie crust, not too rich. While they are baking pick the fish into very small bits, season with cream or with milk, and a lump of butter, pepper and salt. Heat to the boiling point and fill the patties when they are taken from the oven. Another way is to remove the bones and skin, pick the fish up fine, mix with a little chopped cabbage, and season with salad drissing. Still another way is to prepare the fish just as you would for patties, and then serve on thin slices of buttered toast. In this case put milk enough over the fish to allow it to soak into the toast.

Butter on string beans, if cooked and pickled according to these directions, are delicious: Wash them and steam them until they are tender, but not soft; put them into a jar and pour hot vinegar over them; sweeten the vinegar and season highly with cinnamon. Another way, equally excellent, but which gives a different flavor to the pickles, is to boil them in salted water until tender; then pour over them the hot vinegar which has been sweetened, and in addition to the cinnamon has a liberal allowance of pepper, cayenne or black may be used.

Less rain having fallen last September than during any September of which the average man has anything like a distinct recollection, it is now in order for the oldest inhabitant to step forward and rake a September somewhere out of the past that will completely shriyel up the latest September and make it look like a shaving. He will remember a September so dry that the pumps fairly cracked open, and the feathers dried up on the ducks and became so brittle that when the ducks rubbed against anything their feathers broke off like icicles. It will be a September that no one else can remember but the oldest inhabitant; and he will work it off in the country store on long Autumn evenings, and make it so picturesque that his audience will freely treat him to cider, and make his old heart glow and throb like a Summer sunset on a circus-poster.—Puck.

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

For the cure of

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.
